INTRODUCTION

When Willy Whitefeather's notebooks arrived at my home, I was a bit perplexed as to how I would capture their essence. They reminded me so much of my own notes, the ones I take when having mystical experiences, which are often only understandable to me. In my case, my notes are also illegible. But Willy's notes were very readable and filled with beautiful art.

How would I compile and really interpret these writings? How would I do them justice?

But then, it came to me that it was the notes themselves that had value, in their rawest form; because these are the thoughts, dreams, visions and stories of one of our great Native American elders.

What an honor it has been for me to compile his stories, his notebooks, and his work. May you allow the words and images portrayed in Willy Whitefeather's notebooks to penetrate your understanding and give you a glimpse into the mind of a mystic, visionary, storyteller, elder and chief.

I give to you 'The Notebooks of Willy Whitefeather,' please honor them.

"The sun comes at dawn . . . and it knocks the darkness from the sky. It doesn't make a sound. And that is how spiritual awareness happens, that is how the Great Spirit works." Willy Whitefeather

ALL THINGS COME FULL CIRCLE

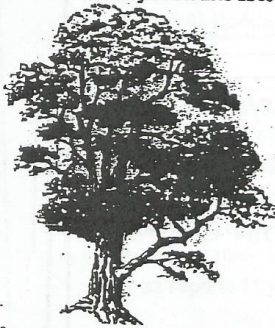

Willy Whitefeather

Long ago the English were in the Sequoia Forest (named after the Cherokee, Sequoia) they found trees so big, that they sent word back to England.

"There are trees here so big that it takes fifty men joining hands to encircle one tree."

"Bah! Humbug!" came the reply from England. "There are no trees that big! Send us the proof!"

So, back in the Sequoia Forest they cut the bark off one of the great Sequoia trees (the bark at the base is over three feet thick). They cut it into three foot by four-foot squares and they numbered each square. It was loaded on a ship bound for England and sent to the Crystal Palace in London. There they constructed a skeleton framework and nailed the bark, side-by-side, up to the framework and when the job was done, the Englishmen walked around the Great Tree in London and exclaimed! "Blimey! There are trees that big!"

Now the Englishman had a saying; "Little children should be seen and not heard." But the little children of England had a song: "London Bridge is falling down... falling down..." and they kept singing and singing.

 REPEAT ***

And then it happened! One day some men came from Arizona, U.S.A. and brought down the London Bridge. Not the whole bridge, just a shortened version and took apart the 3 ft X 4 ft stones and numbered each stone. They brought it across the ocean on a ship to America and re-assembled the London Bridge at Lake Havasu, Arizona on the Colorado River where it still stands today.

The London Bridge was brought to Arizona by Mr. McCulloch who invented McCulloch chain saw that is used to cut down the great trees.

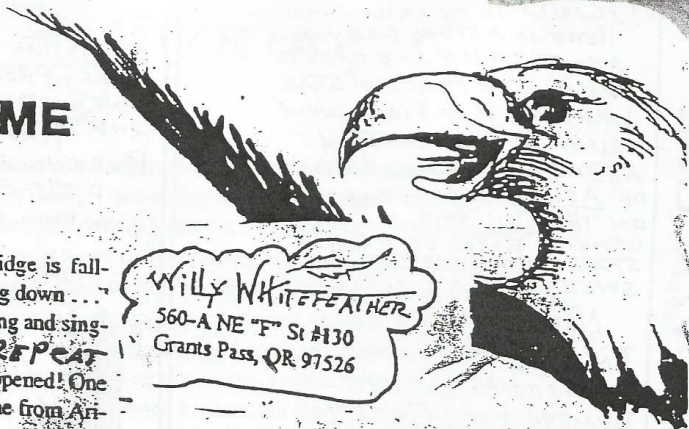

One day there was a forest fire and the great Sequoia tree was burnt black because its bark protection was removed but it still stands today.

You can see and touch that Sequoia tree and you can see the London Bridge for all things come full circle.

And one day all the children sing; "Let there be peace" and one day the war-minds will give a war and no one will show up!

Every year along with the payment for the bridge, Mr. McCulloch sends a Hopi (which means peace) Kachina doll from Arizona to the giver of the London Bridge.

P.S. The Sequoia tree is at the Mariposa Grove, Ca. and Sequoia, Cherokee Indian, died at Mariposa, Mexico.

Terror alert now down to yellow

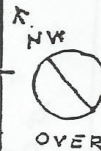

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration lowered the national terror warning level today as Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge said that an urgent threat had passed. However, the airline industry remained at high alert.

The alert level went from orange, signifying a high threat of terrorist attacks, to yellow, signifying an elevated threat. The conclusion of the holidays and the large gathering that go with them played a role in the decision to lower the threat level, Ridge said.

Ridge acknowledged that certain locations and sectors of the economy will keep their security posture at the orange level, but did not identify them. But a U.S. official speaking on condition of anonymity had said earlier that airports and airlines will keep their high alert status.

In my previous report to you titled, "Arctic Circle Earthquakes Begins North American Continent Instability, Greater Earthquakes Sure to Follow," I had stated that there is increasingly grave concern that the long expected Eurasian Plate collision with the North American Plate was now occurring, and had said, "The significance of these current events lie in the fact that great the great instability in the Eurasian Plate, and caused by the magnitude 9.3 event, and as reported by the UPI News Service, "The main earthquake -- a magnitude 9.3 event and the second-strongest ever recorded, unleashed tsunamis that killed nearly 300,000 people in coastal areas as far away as Sri Lanka and India, of December 26, 2004 on this plates southern boundary, is now being transferred to its northern (frontal) boundary where it meets the North American Plate in the Franz Josef Land archipelago."

✓ [Ed. Note: To the rarity of antipode events, weather and earthquake related, I am sorry to report that very little English language references exist due to the American governments censoring of information relating to these events, but to private researchers we have found these things reported by an American researcher, Linda Moulton Howe, and in her report titled, "Swarms of Earthquakes in Ecuador and the Nicobar and Andaman Islands Is There A Connection?" and which says, "But the December 26, 2004, earthquake that measured a magnitude 9.0 on the Richter scale off the Banda Aceh, Sumatra, coast was so big it might have set in motion what geophysicists refer to as a theoretical "antipode effect." Antipode means any two places on the Earth that are directly opposite each other."]

To my previous report of yesterday, titled, "As Violent Storms Rage Across the World, the United States Begins Covert Killings of Dissidents and Destroy Yet another Sovereign Nation," and of the significance of these rare antipode events, I had said, "Simultaneously the National Weather Service of the United States has issued powerful storm warnings for its entire Eastern Coastal Regions due to a massive winter hurricane forming in the Atlantic Ocean, but to the proper warnings of their citizens of this event they are not doing," and of which we can see about this, and as reported by the Associated Press News Service:

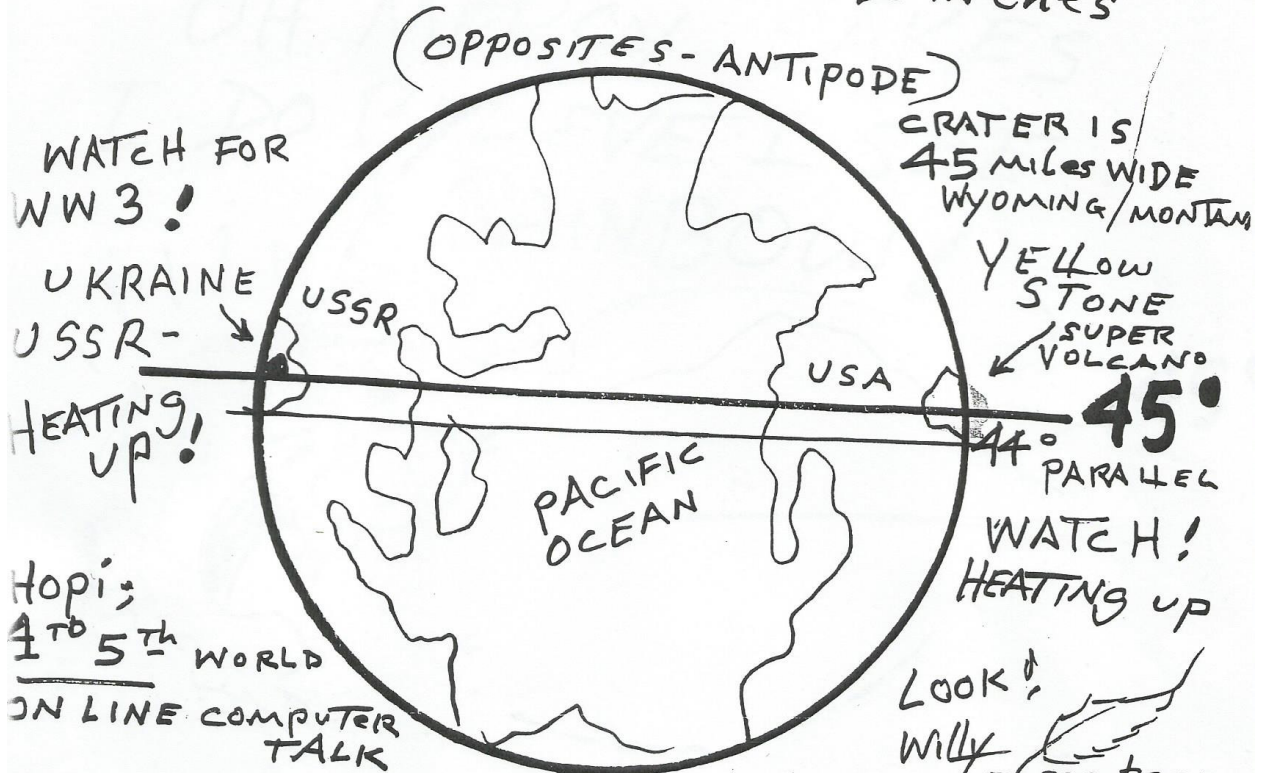

"Much of New England is in the deep freeze. Just two days after parts of the Northeast hit the 60s, a frigid blast has plunged temperatures to just two above zero in Pittsfield, Mass. Tuesday's snow pushed Boston's total for the winter to nearly 7 feet: that's almost double the yearly average. To make matters worse, high wind joined the snow and chilly temperatures. New Jersey's Sussex County felt 50 mph winds. Kitty Hawk, N.C., took the prize for most powerful wind, with an unofficial measurement of a 110 mph gust."

Of the greatest, and gravest, concern relating to of all of these events is possibility that these current earth, both weather and earthquake related, instabilities could be leading to a shifting of the earths Polar Regions.

From the private American research organization Pure Energy Systems and in their report titled "Earth Magnetic Field Reversal: Possible energy ramifications of diminishing magnetic field. How long will it linger at zero before reversing?â€ They say, "The weakening of earth's magnetism is one of the factors believed to be predictive of a pole reversal. That magnetic field reversals have occurred in the past is confirmed in the geological record. What is unclear is how precisely the transition occurs, and what happens to life forms extant at the time of this pole flip.

MOSCOW — A cyanide leak into a river in the Soviet republics of Byelorussia and Latvia has poisoned water supplies to several cities and caused at least two people to become ill, officials said Friday.

They said officials of the plant never told them about the leak, which tainted the Daugava River.

IN 1982 GABE RUNNING WATERS SHARP OF THE MOJAVE NATION ALSO TOLD ME THE STORY
OF THE CORN GIVER. Willy

The Corn Giver

As told to me by Tawodi Perkins

CHEROKEE ELDER - PASSED ON IN 1985

Long before Columbus, the corn giver came to turtle island (America) her hair was the color of the sun, and we remember her, when we open the corn husks and we can see the strands of her golden hair, when we eat the corn raw its lactic like mothers milk, if we boil it it won't digest, if we put it in fire, it goes back to the father, "POP" (slang) CORN. and popcorn in Spanish is Palomitos Blancos which means, little white doves. And you can see this when people are under " FIRE " the best comes out in them, and during any disaster you can see men in white helmets and Red Cross workers in white caps running AROUND and helping people. The corn is the only food that makes us eat in a circle (we cannot eat the center cob) it teaches us what goes around comes around. The corn honors the four races, red, white, black and yellow people. The corn honors the four elements, Grandfather would put SEVEN corn kernels in the EARTH, then he would WATER the corn, and the corn would grow tall in the AIR, and the suns FIRE, would shine on her and turn her the colors of the sun. And the cloud families honor the four colors of corn, YELLOW clouds at dawn, WHITE clouds at midday, BLACK clouds at storming and RED clouds at sunset. And there is a song (that many have forgotten) to bring in the clouds and followed by a song to open the clouds, like they say, " Yours for a song ". The corn honors the basic four directions, WHITE to the NORTH, YELLOW to the EAST, RED to the SOUTH and BLACK to the WEST. The gallon of WHITE paint by adding a shot of YELLOW, RED and BLACK and stir and shake it up and paint it on a wall, its called, " Navajo WHITE " and today many people live in expensive homes and they do not own the walls, they pay to heat and cool the air and pay rent from paint to paint. The four colored corn is called, " Indian Corn " or an EAR OF CORN, O ear is " TO HEAR " in spanish, (Remember there is no R sound in Tsalagi (Cherokee) so the language is Earocorn or an EAR O CORN later became Iroquoian dialect (Remember the pilgrims had over one hundred and forty to ways of trying to spell Tsalagi, Sarakees, Cheroaks 'etc) CORN came before spelling. CORN in Cherokee is SELU, It is written; 4 = SE and M = LU and if you put 4 M,s in a circle you will create an 8 pointed star! (The Cherokee have the 7 pointed star, they are the TSALAGI ANIYUNWIYA, which means " the people principal " next to the Creators Star. The CORN is the circle in the middle of the 8 pointed star, which shows us, what goes around comes around, . CORN is the MAZE or Maize the path of life (Many tribes have the MAZE symbol, also seen on ancient rock drawings). Playful children help blood-thirsty islanders butcher helpless whales

FROM WEEKLY WORLD
NEWS
SEPT. 10, 1985

Despite the worldwide outcry over the senseless slaughter of whales, residents of the Faroe Islands in the North Atlantic arrogantly continue to butcher nearly 3,000 pilot whales a year.

Laughing children help in the kill...
A youngster raises an axe as a friend scampers along the carcass of a butchered whale. Young boys up to their elbows in blood hack at whale heads.

Another youngster sleeps on the back of a decapitated whale.

On the day the photos on this page were taken, 337 pilot whales were herded by a flotilla of boats into one of the island's "slaughter-house bays," then driven onto the shore to be slaughtered with knives.

The islanders — descendants of the ancient Vikings — say whales have been butchered on the island for hundreds of years. Their ancestors relied on whale meat for survival.

But today, because of a rich harvest of fish, shrimp and squid, the islanders do not need whale meat to survive.

Yet they carry on with a tradition that demands the death of nearly 3,000 whales a year and they refuse to end the slaughter.

And so the terrifying massacre continues.

A WHALE of a blow.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S VISION

For 3 nights in a row, A Vision AND A Voice Spoke to George Washington (SEE COMPUTER) AND HE WAS SHOWN THE FUTURE, THE VOICE SAID: "SON OF THE REPUBLIC, WATCH, LOOK AND LEARN." THE FINAL VISION WAS A FOREIGN (RED) ARMY COMING TO ATTACK AMERICA.

THE BATTLE PLANS OF THE CHEROKEE AND OTHER TRIBES ARE STILL STUDIED AT WEST POINT ARMY ACADEMY. FIRST, THE COUNTRY YOU WISH TO ATTACK, SEND MOST ALL OF ITS SOLDIERS AWAY TO FOREIGN WARS. NEXT, MAKE A BIG SMOKE SCREEN IN THE SOUTH, (OIL SPILL IN THE GULF) NOTE: APRIL 20TH WAS HITLER'S BIRTHDAY, SAME DAY B.P. OIL PIPE EXPLODED. NEXT, BRING IN U.S. ARMY TO THE GULF (NOT REALLY NEEDED) NEXT, COLLAPSE THE ECONOMY. NEXT, AMERICANS RIOT. NEXT, ARMY MAKES MARTIAL LAW - NEXT, THE 300 EMPTY CONCENTRATION CAMPS ACROSS THE COUNTRY CAN BE FILLED UP. (SAME GAME PLAYED ON CHEROKEES IN 1838) NEXT, WHILE ALL LOOKING AT THE SMOKE SCREEN IN THE SOUTH, ATTACK FROM THE NORTH. WASHINGTON'S VISION COMPLETE. PRAY FOR DIVINE INTERVENTION.

SUBJECT:

MID-EAST PEACE CONFERENCE

Set for October, 1991 Thru Dec. 92

TO: HIS EXCELLENCY, THE SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE UNITED NATIONS;

I hope that this finds you in good health and spirits. I believe that the following thoughts will help in the MID-EAST PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

EINSTEIN, who was Jewish, was quoted as saying: "It would behoove the Nations of the world to listen to the people who are called primitive and savage races, for they may hold the key to peace on our earth." (Please see Hopi letter to the U.N., enclosed) Einstein's race of people took the 6-pointed star as their symbol; the Cherokee people took the 7-pointed star as their symbol. So my Cherokee heritage has an extra point to make at this critical time in world affairs.

The Cherokee "Trail of Tears" death march from Tennessee to Oklahoma began in the Congress of the United States on May 14, 1828. (See enclosed front page from the Cherokee Phoenix newspaper)

In 1828 stockades were built to hold the Cherokees--my father's people. During the "Trail of Tears" over 4,000 of my people died. And untold numbers of others died in the stockades of exposure, starvation and smallpox. In total, over one third of the Cherokee Nation perished in those death camps. Adolph Hitler was full of praise for the way the U.S. Government eliminated the American Indian population, (as cited in Hitler's autobiography by John Toland) and so Hitler built Auschwitz, Dachau, and Treblinka stockades, to eliminate the 6-pointed star people.

In 1943 the Nazis and the Japanese broke the secret code of the U.S. Military. You know as well as I, that without a code you lose the war. So, the U.S. Military called upon the Cherokee Nation for help. And the syllabary of Sequoya, the Cherokee genius, became the written code, and the Navajo language became the spoken code of World War II.

Sequoya's syllabary is enclosed. Also, National Navajo Code Talker's Day was established on August 14, 1982, by the 96th Congress Bill 444.

With the U.S. Military code broken, Generals Eisenhower and Patton would never have set foot in Europe, and they never would have seen the death camp stockades of Aushwitz, Dachau or Treblinka. And the world, through the compassion of the United Nations, would not have become aware of them, either. And then, the 6-pointed star people would never have been given the free State of Israel on May 14, 1948.

There were no movie cameras in the years between 1828 and 1839 to record the ten years of hell the United States gave the Cherokees, so the majority of the good people of the world did not realize what was happening. But there were movies in 1945 to show the world man's inhumanity to man in the Nazi stockades. And so justice was demanded, which led to the Nazi War Criminal Trials. However, no one heard the death cries of the Cherokees.

From the vantage point of my Cherokee heritage, I see that there can be no peace without forgiveness and compassion.

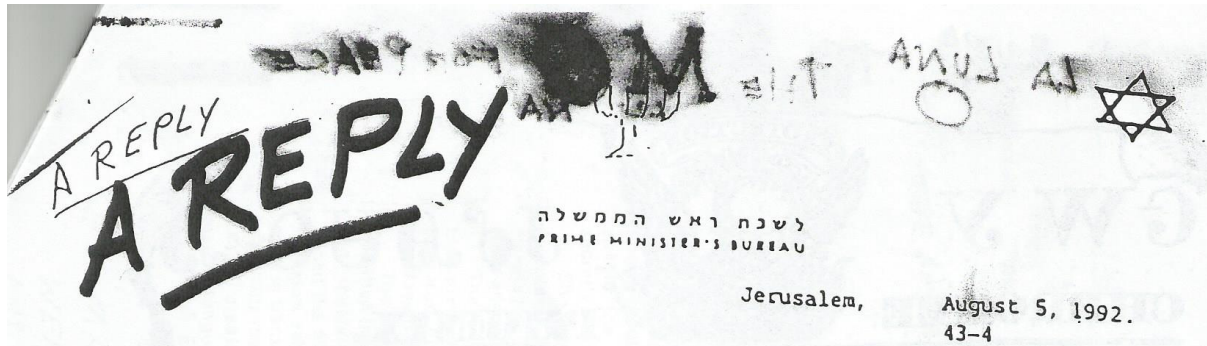

The injustice done to my people, the Cherokees, and to many other Native American Tribes, did not prevent the Cherokee and the Navajo people from later helping the same military force that had tried to destroy them.

Now, in this critical time of world strife, the 6-pointed star people should show their compassion to the rest of the world. This important conference is an ideal opportunity for them to reciprocate the compassion the world showed them following World War II, and award a free state to their neighbors the Palestinians.

In Peace and Friendship,

Sincerely,

Willy Whitefeather

Dear Mr. Whitefeather,

On behalf of the Prime Minister, Mr. Yitzhak Rabin, thank you for your letter dated July 17, 1992, and enclosures, which I read with great interest.

Numerous injustices have been perpetrated against the Native American people. I am also aware that the contributions of the Native American community have extended far beyond its invaluable assistance in defeating the Nazi regime, as you rightly mention, thus lifting the death sentence on the Jewish people.

Please be assured that the Government of Israel is committed to reaching an interim agreement which would grant the Palestinians autonomy and would serve as the groundwork for a secure and honorable peace for both peoples, and I am optimistic that such an agreement will be reached during this government's term in office.

Sincerely,

Navajo Code Talkers

THE AMERICAN INDIAN IS AMERICAS - SECRET WEAPON -

THE NAVAJO CODE TALKERS

World War II erupted in the Pacific Ocean with the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. During the early months in the Pacific, Japanese intelligence experts broke every code the United States devised for combat messages.

In any war situation, the rapid and accurate transmission of combat messages is essential. Japan was learning in advance, the time, place and direction the American attack forces would be deployed. Something had to be done to enable the American forces to communicate freely and secretly in the Pacific.

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, a group of twenty-nine volunteers left the tranquil canyons and mesas of their Navajo homeland. Little did they know of the crucial role they were about to play in the U.S. war effort.

These twenty-nine volunteers were the direct result of an idea presented to the Marines by Philip Johnston. His idea, born from his childhood days as a missionary's son living on the Navajo Reservation, was ingenious.

The idea was to devise a code utilizing the complex unwritten language of the Navajo. Knowing the complex syntax and intricate tonal qualities of the language, he convinced the Marines it would baffle the best of cryptographers. Johnston said the language could be used as the basis for a code to transmit vital information and battle plans.

With the help of the twenty-nine Navajo volunteers the task of creating code terms was underway. Words from their native tongue were selected to describe complex military equipment and operations. Where possible, Navajo words that had a logical association with the desired military term were selected. Thus the Navajo word for frog, "ch'ad", became the code word for amphibious and "ch'ahjigia" (white hats) became sailors. Similarly potatoes became grenades, eggs were bombs and America became "nihina" (our mother). At full strength there were about 400 Navajos who were "Code Talkers". These men were considered so valuable each had been assigned a personal body guard.

The Navajo Code Talkers were so effective the Japanese were completely baffled and their master cryptographers never broke the code. In the words of Major Howard Conner, signal officer of the Fifth Marine Division at Iwo Jima, "during the first 48 hours, while we were landing and consolidating our shore positions, I had six Navajo radio networks operating around the clock. In that period alone, they sent and received over 800 messages without an error". Conner went on to say that "were it not for the Navajos, the Marines would never have taken Iwo Jima".

The first formal recognition of the Navajo Code Talkers and their vital contribution to the war effort came twenty-five years after the war was over on June 28, 1969. The Fourth Marine Division honored the Navajo Code Talkers with medallions commemorating their efforts. This began a string of recognition which has included proclamations from the States of Arizona and New Mexico. On July 28, 1982 the President of the United States signed a measure proclaiming AUGUST 14th as "NATIONAL NAVAJO CODE TALKERS DAY".

LONG Ago, IN THE DAWN OF
TIME, THERE WERE NO WORDS, ALL THINGS
WERE THOUGHT; BETWEEN HUMANS, PLANTS AND ANIMALS, AND LIFE WAS GOOD.
THEN A GREAT EVIL THOUGHT CAME TO MAN, AND MAN BEGAN TO KILL AND EAT
THE ANIMALS, EL OSO, THE BEAR YONA
AS THE CHIEF OF THE ANIMALS, AND THE BEAR GOT ALL THE ANIMALS INTO A CIRCLE
AND SAID, "IF MAN EATS US, THEN WE

WILL POISON MAN." AND THE RATTLESNAKE SPOKE UP, AND SAID; "I WILL THEN BE THE ONE WHO WILL POISON MAN FOR ALL OF YOU, AND SO THE RATTLESNAKE WENT AROUND THE CIRCLE AND TOOK A SMALL OFFERING FROM EACH ANIMAL. (THE RATTLESNAKE VENOM IS PURE CONCENTRATED PROTEIN, THIS IS WHAT KILLS HUMANS) THE DEER AND MAN WERE SEPARATED, THAT IS WHY THE DEER HAS THE GREASE SPOTS ON THE INSIDE OF THE BACK LEGS, THE DEER THREW UP THEIR TAILS AND RAN AWAY. AND TODAY PEOPLE WHO ARE SNOOTY AND THINK THEMSELVES BETTER, PUT THEIR NOSES INTO THE AIR AND WALK AWAY. AND THIS IS WHY ANIMALS RUN AWAY FROM MAN TODAY, EXCEPT FOR BEAR.

THE TREES AND PLANTS THEN GOT INTO A BIG CIRCLE, THE PINE TREE WAS CHIEF, AND SAID; "IF THE ANIMALS ARE GOING TO POISON MAN, THEN WE WILL HELP MAN." AND THE LEMON TREE SAID; "THEN I WILL GIVE OF MY FRUIT TO COUNTER-ACT THE RATTLESNAKE POISON, BUT WHEN MAN EATS OF MY FRUIT, HE

WILL MAKE A FACE, AND THE FACE HE MAKES WILL REFLECT HOW HE LOOKS TO THE ANIMALS. (LEMONS CONTAIN VITAMIN C SO DO PINE NEEDLES IN A TEA. IF BITTEN BY RATTLESNAKE VITAMIN C WILL COUNTERACT THE POISON)

THE CHAPARRAL SAID; "I WILL HELP HEAL MANS SICKNESS'ES." AND ALL THE PLANTS AND TREES AGREED, AS SHE WAS THE CHIEF FEMALE, "LA GOBRIENADORA" (THE GOVERNESS) AND SO IN THE MOJAVE DESERT IN CALIFORNIA THERE IS A PERFECT CIRCLE OF CHAPARRAL THE SCIENTISTS SAY THEY ARE OVER SEVENTY-FIVE THOUSAND YEARS OLD AND THEY ARE OVER 14 FEET TALL - AND THE SCIENTISTS CANT UNDERSTAND WHY THEY ARE THE OLDEST, THE TALLEST AND WHY IN SUCH A PERFECT CIRCLE - BECAUSE THEY DONT KNOW THAT STORY. SIMPLY PUT, LEMON CUTS GREASE, GREASE COMES FROM ANIMALS, LEMONS FROM TREES.

Whitefeather talks on desert survival

Staff Williamson

Survival in the desert is a serious subject in Willie Whitefeather, a member of the Cherokee Indian tribe. Everywhere he goes, he is quick to point out to the people around him, trees, cacti and other plants that are edible and to sustain a person lost in the desert.

Sunday, Whitefeather spoke to approximately 35 people in Carr Canyon, what they can do to save themselves if they find themselves stranded and alone in the high desert terrain of Mohave County.

He said, "There is food all around you, if you know where to look."

As an example, Whitefeather said a Yucca plant has many uses. It can be used for firewood, and its seeds are edible.

From the mesquite trees, which are abundantly available in high desert, you can gather firewood, and the beans from the tree are good for making a flour-like substance which can be used to bake bread and other foods. Whitefeather said "you can use the very new green esquite beans to make a soup or the brown, dried beans for the flour."

However, he warned, the "old green" mesquite beans are toxic and can make you very sick.

According to Whitefeather, the Gobi or Century Cactus plant has many uses to the desert traveler.

"If you are injured and have an open wound that requires stitches," he said, "the pointed end of the leaf can be used as a needle and the hemp like fiber of the leaf can be used as a sewing thread."

This plant can also be used for firewood when dried, and the center stalk which can grow very tall, is edible.

He told the audience how to check this stalk to see if it was ripe for eating.

"Push the stalk gently with your hands and if it only waves back and forth like a rigid board, it is not ripe. If the stalk bends and waves in several places as you push, it is ripe and ready to eat," he said. "Starting with the base, the plant will taste like vanilla pudding, a little further up and it will start to taste like celery and near the top of the plant, the taste will resemble a carrot."

Whitefeather showed his captive audience a wide variety of foods he found within 50 to 100 feet of the Carr House, where they were sitting. There were several types of berries, nuts and grasses.

At the heart of his presentation was his concern for the safety of others, especially children. Whitefeather has written and published two books on desert survival for children and proudly boasts of two separate incidents, where children who have become lost in the desert have said they survived because of the information they read in his books.

Survival Tips from Willy Whitefeather

Having taught two US Army battalions in desert survival, I would like to share with you the following tips from my experience:

No. 1. ATTITUDE. Attitude is your inner survival instinct. You say to yourself, "I'm going to make it, no matter what." Without that, don't bother with the rest of this.

No. 2: LOOK, LISTEN. There is a stillness before an earthquake. Birds, dogs barking, cats' unusual behavior, horses whinny nervously before an earthquake. Pigs have been known to run in a circle before a tornado approaches. Some people experience cramps or aches before a quake. Listen and look.

No. 3: Do not complain. Assist others.

No. 4. On Tornado Protection, a freeway underpass is not the safest place. The ditch past the underpass is the best spot. Lay face down. The underpass acts as a wind tunnel and supersedes the tornado's wind.

No. 5. Grandfather told me when the Great Turtle Island (America) is covered with bee stings, they will buzz and swarm. Look at computers today (I don't own one.) The US Geological maps of US quakes show lots of red dots where earthquakes are happening (looks like red bee stings), and they use words like "Earthquake Swarms" and the "Earth is Buzzing" and the "Land is Swelling." The buzzing means a quake is imminent.

No. 6: BOOM! If a volcano should erupt, what should you do? Do not fly near the volcano. The ash will clog the carburetor. When Mount St. Helens erupted in 1980, some folks survived better than others... let's look! Carry at least two gallons of water in your vehicle. Carry clean rags and towels. Wet the towel, wring it out, put the damp cloth over your nose and mouth.

People who did that made out better than people who had dry paper masks. Why? Because volcanic ash is fine powder, ground up glass. So with a damp towel you can keep moving it across your face; as the ash powder builds up, move the damp towel or clean rag to the next breathable spot.

Put a towel or rag over your vehicle's carburetor air cleaner intake, so you can drive out of the falling ash area. You may have to stop many times to shake the ash out of the towel. The people who did not do this had clogged carburetors and stalled out vehicles and had to walk out of the area.

No. 7. Protect yourself and your family from volcanic ash. Have the following on hand or in your vehicle (besides water and towels):

- A war surplus gas mask (if you live near an active volcano, methane gas is released along with other gases).
- Eye protection goggles that protect all around your eyes.
- Earplugs (no ash in ears).
- Head cover, cap, scarf.
- Gloves. Think safe!
- You call friends or relatives who live 200 or more miles away. Carry their phone numbers on you. Give the number to your family so everyone can call that person in an emergency.

Remember when Mount St. Helens erupted, everybody complained. Two years later, it's beautiful and growing back.

Protect the kids and you, too. Hawaii was once volcanic ash!

Colombia volcano erupts; thousands feared killed

From the news services
BOGOTA, Colombia — A long-dormant volcano erupted in western Colombia melting its snowcap and triggering torrents of rushing mud and water and thousands may have been killed, officials and radio stations said today.

Officials said Armero, a town of 50,000 people about 60 miles northwest of Bogota, was inundated by mud that was swept down the Languilla river following the eruption of the volcano, Nevado del Ruiz, Wednesday night.

Civil defense workers had found 38 bodies by this morning, the Bogota radio chain IBCN said.

Artemio Franco, director of the Red Cross in the area, said, "It is an immense tragedy. There's talk of 20,000 dead."

Raul Ramirez, a reporter for the radio chain Todelar, was one of the first people at the scene. He said 90 percent of Armero was destroyed.

"The mass of mud is up to five yards high in some areas," he said. "Some people were able to escape and climb over walls that weren't covered by the avalanche and were rescued with the help of ropes and horses."

The volcano, about 75 miles northwest of Armero, had been dormant for more than a century when it began throwing out smoke, ashes and gas in October, 1984. The Nevado del Ruiz is at about 15,500 feet and is 135 miles northwest of the capital of Bogota.

A pilot who flew over the area near

Volcano Arenas today said Armero, a city of 50,000, had "disappeared."

Bogota's El Espectador newspaper said three bodies were taken to a hospital and Bogota radio stations said about 100 people were missing from the flooding.

Three months ago, the volcano began to spew smoke and ash, causing officials to reroute airlines around the area. Geologists from several nations — including the United States — were monitoring the volcano.

CALL ME AND I WILL HAVE TO DRAW THE EARTH'S

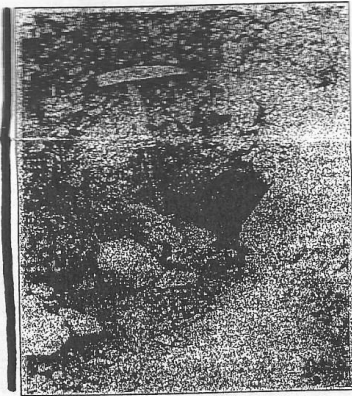

The Breathing Earth: Wupatki Blowholes

YAPONCHA - Hopi

For a hole only a couple of inches across, the blowhole generates enormous interest. Perhaps it's the mysterious nature of the hole that stirs our imagination. No one knows for sure what is down there. Perhaps it's the uniqueness of the phenomenon that sparks our curiosity. We don't often encounter air naturally blowing in and out of the ground. What is it that interests you about this little hole in the ground, this place where the earth breathes?

What are they?

A blowhole is a small opening in the ground through which air will blow out or suck in—a kind of natural fan or vacuum. At Wupatki there are several known blowholes, one of which can be seen at the end of the Wupatki Pueblo interpretive trail. Research on blowholes in northern Arizona indicates that the openings connect with an extensive underground fracture system. Fractures open to the surface are locally known as "earth cracks," which are sometimes hundreds of feet deep.

Before the masonry box was placed over the Wupatki blowhole in 1965, spelunkers descended 18 feet down the very small opening. The blowhole proved to be a small opening to a large underground fracture too constricted to explore.

The fractures are tectonic in origin, formed over millions of years as the Colorado Plateau region buckled and stretched in response to plate movements. Earth cracks form in limestone because, like salt, limestone dissolves when in contact with water, resulting in the enlargement of the existing fractures.

Some geologists argue that there are caverns beneath some of the blowholes. Most scientists, however, believe that the subsurface air space is confined to long, narrow and interconnected fractures. Regardless, there is substantial underground space in this area. Measuring the amount of air blowing in and out of the blowhole near Wupatki Pueblo, researchers estimated the underground air space to be seven billion cubic feet—equivalent to a tunnel 165 feet by 165 feet square and 50 miles long!

Willy Whitefeather's mission in this world has been to bring peace upon its shores. He has said that we should all be like the waves of the ocean, breathe in and breathe out . . . breathe in goodness, breathe out goodness. He says, "Put everything aside and care for everyone!" And this is how we can attain peace. Willy Whitefeather

As a young man, Whitefeather was a river guide. He said that that grownups would scream when they reached the center of the river where the water fell to seven feet in depth. But the kids would just laugh. "Don't grow up!" he says, "There is a river and it is flowing swiftly. And there are those who are holding onto the shore. But let go of the shore and go to the center of the river. There you will meet others of like mind. Take nothing personal at this time or you will be cast up against the shore. The river has a destination. When it arrives we will find that we are the ones that we have been waiting for . . . " In other words, every one of us must be a vessel of peace in this world. Willy Whitefeather

"See how you are?" Whitefeather said, as he took his index finger and pointed to a tree. Then he points that same index backwards towards himself and said, "I drink water, the tree drinks water. We are the same. What can I do to help you? It doesn't matter how strong a man is, it matters how strong his spirit is." Willy Whitefeather

The Cherokee People, according to Willy Whitefeather, are the Principle People; the Thalakee Oneumweea. They were created by beings from the Seven Stars (the Pleiades). And this is why we have seven openings in our head, and seven spiritual openings in our bodies. The people were created in Nation, and they are the Keepers of the Sacred Flame. The elders always say, "Stay awake, day and night . . . to make sure the flame does not go out." There is a story told that when the Cherokee crossed a river the Sacred Flame went out. The keepers had to ask permission of the Cavalry to go back to retrieve the Sacred Flame . . . and they did. That flame still burns . . . and we must make a better world for the next seven generations on Turtle Island (as Cherokee's call the earth.). Willy Whitefeather

"Children are the power . . . listen to the children." Willy Whitefeather

Willy Whitefeather and Marilyn Hughes spoke on the phone for hours in October 2014. Many notes came of this conversation and papers that Willy has sent to Marilyn for compilation. His first words and many throughout the conversation included the importance of the woman coming forward at this time in history. But here are a few gems to share with you today:

"What you say has power. What you put out, comes back. If we don't learn to live with one another, the law of the Great Spirit will do it for us. In the first world, there was no love, so fire came and destroyed it. In the second world, the people were cold to one another, and ice came and destroyed it. In the third world, there were no tears for one another, and the floods destroyed it. And we are now in the fourth world, and it is shaking . . .

" Willy Whitefeather shook his turtle rattle as he said these words. "Either, you have nothing but time on your hands, or you are trying to save time . . . but listen, the world is shaking. The people who have no love will go to the bottom like the corn that does not pop. But we are shaking in order to move from the 4th world to the 5th. The turtle dove is the vibration of that world. The indian drumbeat is the heartbeat of the earth. When the tree falls, everyone feels it. Your eyes are the rainbow." Willy Whitefeather

"Be as a little hollow bone to the Great Spirit, make sure that all move into you and then through you . . . that you hold onto nothing, but give it all away again." Willy Whitefeather

"Go back to your roots. Without roots, a tree dies." Willy Whitefeather

"The sun comes at dawn . . . and it knocks the darkness from the sky. It doesn't make a sound. And that is how spiritual awareness happens, that is how the Great Spirit works." Willy Whitefeather

THE NOTEBOOKS OF WILLY WHITEFEATHER: When Willy Whitefeather's notebooks arrived at my home, I was a bit perplexed as to how I would capture their essence. They reminded me so much of my own notes, the ones I take when having mystical experiences, which are often only understandable to me. In my case, my notes are also illegible. But Willy's notes were very readable and filled with beautiful art.

How would I compile and really interpret these writings? How would I do them justice?

But then, it came to me that it was the notes themselves that had value, in their rawest form; because these are the thoughts, dreams, visions and stories of one of our great Native American elders.

What an honor it has been for me to compile his stories, his notebooks, and his work. May you allow the words and images portrayed in Willy Whitefeather's notebooks to penetrate your understanding and give you a glimpse into the mind of a mystic, visionary, storyteller, elder and chief.

I give to you 'The Notebooks of Willy Whitefeather,' please honor them.

"The sun comes at dawn . . . and it knocks the darkness from the sky. It doesn't make a sound. And that is how spiritual awareness happens, that is how the Great Spirit works." Willy Whitefeather
